

ONLINE ACTION

One important tool for finding and engaging allies is using social media: are there people in your community you follow on Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, Snapchat, or other platforms, that have been posting about birth control?

Even after you've found partners to work with, you should keep using social media to amplify your work. Consider using Facebook event pages if you're going to hold an event and use national hashtags like #HandsOffMyBC to make your work part of the national conversation. You can always reach out to hello@genprogress.org if you have specific questions on how to kickstart your organizing on social media, and can always tag us on Facebook, Twitter, or Instagram so we can amplify your campaign!

Generation Progress

@genprogress

@genprogress

GENERATION PROGRESS

To get connected to the birth control conversation online, start with these organizations!

SOCIAL MEDIA GRAPHICS

Consider using some of these social media graphics for the #HandsOffMyBC rallies happening November 15th, or sharing the ones you find online!

Like the content you see?
Click the graphics to download the images to your phone or computer!